uSHAKA SEA WORLD NEEDS VOLUNTARY EDUCATION GUIDES March 2011

Sea World is privileged to have an enthusiastic and dedicated group of Education volunteers who work with children on courses, interact with guests and guide organised groups through the aquarium. It could be Primary school learners one day, then the next day cruise ship passengers, and the next families from all over South Africa as well as beyond our borders.

Each volunteer shares a special passion for marine conservation, and has great fun chatting to guests aged between 2 and 92 years, from all walks of life. Some of our guides have been with us for many years, and find their voluntary involvement with Sea World both fascinating and rewarding.

We need to expand our volunteer group to cater for the increasing demand on their services. Are you between 18 and 65 years old, with free time on weekdays or on weekends, and would like to use this time in a rewarding, exciting and constructive way? Can you get to uShaka Sea World easily? Are you prepared to work for no salary? If you answered yes to the above questions, this may be just right for you.

During March the NPC Sea World Education staff will be accepting applications for new volunteers to work as education guides in the aquarium and for school courses. No qualifications are required, other than your enthusiasm and ability to communicate with people, particularly children. No prior biological or educational experience is necessary, as you will receive comprehensive training. Speakers of all languages are welcome, although English is essential.

We are giving a presentation to interested applicants at 11h00 or 17h30 on Wednesday 23rd March at the NPC Sea World Education Centre at uShaka Marine World. If this sounds like something for you, and you would like more details, please contact Margie Cowan on 031 328 8192.
